BRNET Member Grant/Funding Announcements

Receipt of funding facilitates the BRNET mission to conduct interdisciplinary research related to bullying and aggression, with particular attention being paid to the link between basic and applied research. Thus, the BRNET directors are excited to offer members a new opportunity to share grants (and other sources of funding) they have received for their research projects.

Funding varies across countries and is not limited to federal grants. If you are interested in sharing your grants or funding with other BRNET members, please send an abstract of the research funding along with the funding source to bullyresearchnet@gmail.com and we will post the information on our website.

BRNET MEMBER ANNOUNCEMENTS

(1) International Research Opportunity - Examining Teacher Responses to Peer Conflict and Bullying

The Bullying Research Network and the World Anti-Bullying Forum are seeking international researchers interested in collaborating on a study examining teacher responses to peer conflict and bullying across the globe.

Given that bullying typically first occurs in the school context, teachers play a critical role in addressing and solving the problem. Extending our understanding of teacher responses to peer conflict and bullying

(see the recent 2021 special issue in the European Journal of Developmental Psychology), we invite researchers to join us in an international research collaboration, overseen by Drs. Wendy Craig (Queens University, Canada), Shelley Hymel (University of British Columbia, Canada), and Susan Swearer (University of Nebraska - Lincoln, United States).

We propose two parallel studies of teacher responses to peer conflict/bullying vignettes, both conducted online using Qualtrics, (1) one addressing peer conflict in elementary school contexts and the other (2) addressing identity-based bullying in the secondary school context. The elementary study has been designed and piloted by doctoral candidate, Daria Khanolainen, University of Jyväskylä, Finland. The secondary study, has been designed and piloted by doctoral candidate, Lindsay Starosta, University of British Columbia, Canada. In both studies, participants will be asked to respond to hypothetical peer conflict/bullying situations that are depicted visually in storyboard form. Participating researchers would be expected to oversee ethics approval, recruitment, and data collection in their own country, using a common data protocol and submitting a final, anonymized data set to the international collaboration managers by December 31, 2022. Participating researchers can publish data from their own country, and will also have an opportunity to participate in collaborative international publications, using the full dataset. See the attached PDFs or the following link for a brief overview of the two studies:
<https://cehs.unl.edu/BRNET/research-opportunities/>.

If you are interested in participating in one or both studies, please contact the international collaboration managers (Drs. Craig, Hymel, and Swearer) via the BRNET email (bullyresearchnet@gmail.com) and complete the attached form that indicates your interest. Interested collaborators will be asked to participate, virtually or in-person, in an initial meeting at the forthcoming meeting of the World Anti-Bullying Forum to be held in Stockholm, Sweden. The meeting will take place on Wednesday, Nov. 3, 2021 from 1 to 2:30 pm (Stockholm time), following the closing session of the conference.

(5) International Journal of Bullying Prevention Accepted to Scopus

Drs. O'Higgins Norman and Hinduja are delighted to inform you that after only 2 full years in existence, the International Journal of Bullying Prevention has been accepted to Scopus. This is a big achievement for such a new journal and is mostly due to the high standard of contributions from scholars across the globe.

IJBP is a peer reviewed academic journal published by Springer and edited by Sameer Hinduja (Florida Atlantic University) and James O'Higgins Norman (Dublin City University). It is focused on research about bullying in any context. In 2020, there were over 90,000 downloads from the journal.

We would love to share this good news with you and BRNET members and encourage bullying researchers to contribute original research to the journal. Details on how to submit to the journal can be found here: <https://www.springer.com/journal/42380>. We would also be happy to hear from interested potential reviewers.
